

"Interdisciplinary perspectives of addressee-oriented consequences research"
Conference of the DFG Research Training Group 2493 "Consequences of Social Services Work"

Date: 20th October 2021
Start: 1pm
Venue: digital via ZOOM

Social services are designed and justified in very different ways. What they have in common is the intention to provide those persons and groups addressed for support. In public, political and scientific contexts, it is increasingly expected to provide evidence as to whether the assistance actually brings about positive effects. Until now, relevant studies have followed disciplinary logics to a large extent, so that a heterogeneous landscape of research has developed. The Research Training Group will discuss these different approaches in the context of the conference and will use a deliberately broad concept of the consequences of social services: In addition to intended outcomes, non-intended consequences of social services will also be considered. Another focus is on the addressees.

1.00pm – 1.15pm	Opening by Bernd Dollinger and Hanna Weinbach (Speaker of the Research Training Group)
1.15pm – 2.15pm	Andreas Polutta (Duale Hochschule Baden-Württemberg, Villingen-Schwenningen) „Konsequenzen wirkungsorientierter Steuerung. Fachkräfte sozialer Dienste in der Praxis der Nachweiserbringung und Folgeinschätzung“
2.15pm – 2.30pm	Break
2.30pm – 3.30pm	Wolfgang Lutz (Universität Trier) "Prozess- und evidenzbasierte Psychotherapie und Psychotherapieforschung"
3.30pm – 3.45pm	Break

Registration form for the conference of the DFG Research Training Group 2493 „Consequences of Social Services Work“:

“Interdisciplinary perspectives of addressee-oriented consequences research”

Date: 20th October 2021

Start: 1 pm

Venue: digital via ZOOM

Within the framework of the conference, the Research Training Group integrates different approaches to the field of social services work and deliberately uses the term "consequences" broadly. Thus, in addition to wanted, intended and conceptually defined goals, other, unwanted, unintended and side-effects of social services are also considered. Another central focus of this conference is the consideration of consequences from an addressee-oriented research approach.
